Johnny & The.Q: Unable to render something like a button in HTML - Qt I'm kinda new to Qt but am trying to learn by making a card game using it. For instance, I'd like to render a card to add to my deck with a different image. My card class is: class Card { public: Card(int row, int col, QColor color, QGraphicsScene *scene); ~Card(); QColor getColor(); int getRow(); int getCol(); QGraphicsScene *getScene(); void render(); private: int row; int col; QColor color; QGraphicsScene *scene; }; And the constructor is: Card::Card(int row, int col, QColor color, QGraphicsScene *scene): row(row), col(col), color(color), scene(scene) { } I'm able to add a Card to the deck in the main window, but what I'd like to do is have a different image for each card, and this image being updated once a card has been dealt. I tried to subclass QGraphicsPixmapItem and override the paint method, but that didn't seem to work, so now I'm trying to render a button using the QGraphicsScene's drawBackground method. But this doesn't seem to work either. Here's the code I'm using to try and render a button: class CardWrap { public: CardWrap(); CardWrap(int row, int col, QColor color, QGraphicsScene *scene);
